Does it often seem like your child is on an emotional roller coaster?

The University of Pittsburgh is currently conducting a research study to learn more about how certain personality traits affect interpersonal relationships.

Who is Eligible?
Parent and child (age 11-13) currently receiving mental health treatment

What is Involved?
This study consists of three visits. Parent and child will complete a series of interviews, questionnaires and interactive tasks, and will return to the lab in 9 months and again in 18 months to complete follow-up assessments.

Both parent and child participants will be compensated for participation.

For More Information, Please Contact:

EMOTIONAL AND PERSONALITY DEVELOPMENT IN YOUTH RESEARCH GROUP

412-383-5092
Email: Moody@pitt.edu